

popular adjective

If someone or something is popular, a lot of people like them.

population /say pop-yuh-lay-shuhn/ noun

The population of a place is all the people who live there.

porch noun (plural porches)

A porch is the covered part at the door of a building.

pork noun

Pork is the meat from a pig.

porridge noun

Porridge is a hot food that some people eat in the morning, made from a grain (called 'oats') and cooked in water or milk.

Spelling Tip: Remember the idge spelling at the end (not age or ige). You could think of making a ridge in your porridge with a spoon to remind you of this spelling.

port noun

A port is a town or city beside the sea, where there is a place to load things on the ships or take them off.

portrait /say pawt-ruht/ noun

A portrait is a picture of someone. It can be a painting, a drawing or even a photograph.

position noun

1. A position is a place. These flowers need to be planted in a sunny position.
2. A position is a way in which you have put your body. I can't get into a comfortable position on this hard seat.

positive adjective

If you are positive about something, you are very sure or certain.

possess verb

If you possess something, you have or own it. All she possessed in the whole world was her cat and an old black bag.

possession noun

A possession is something you own.

possible adjective

1. If something is possible, it is able to happen or it can be done. Is it possible for you to help me? | This piano won't go through the front door – it's just not possible.
2. If you say that something is possible, you mean it might happen or might be true, but you do not know for sure. It's possible that there will be some rain later.

The opposite of definition 1 is impossible.

possibly adverb

You use possibly when you want to say you may be able to do something or something may happen, but it is not certain. The teacher said we could possibly get the afternoon off but she wasn't sure.

possum noun

A possum is an Australian animal with a long tail, that lives in trees and feeds at night. The female has a pouch to carry her babies.

post¹ noun

A post is a long, thin piece of wood or metal that stands up with one end in the ground and is used as a support.

post² noun

1. The post is the way you send letters and packages to people. You pay by putting a stamp on the letter which you take to a special box. It is then taken to the person whose name you have written on it. We can't get to Joshua's party so we will send a present by post.
 2. The post is things like letters that are sent by post. Has the post arrived yet?
- verb 3. If you post a letter, you put it in special box so that it can be sent by post. We posted Mum's letters on the way to school.

Word Building: postman, adjective A man who delivers the post is the postman.

Another word for post is mail.

postbox noun

A postbox is a large box in the street where you can put letters and other things to be sent by post.

postcard noun

A postcard is a card you can send to someone by post, usually with a photograph or picture of a place on one side and space for writing on the other side. You usually send postcards to people when you are away on holidays.

poster noun

A poster is a large picture or notice printed on paper and put on a place like a wall where people can see it.

post office noun

A post office is a building where you can go to buy stamps and other things you need in order to send letters and packages.

postpone verb

If you postpone something, you put it off until a later time. We will have to postpone the sports day if it rains.

pot noun

A pot is a deep, round container used for cooking.

potato noun (plural potatoes)

A potato is a vegetable which grows under the ground, is white inside and can be cooked in lots of different ways.

potoroo /say pot-uh-rooh/ noun

A potoroo is a small Australian animal with a long nose and a pointed head. It lives in thick grass, and sleeps during the day and comes out at night. We were lucky to see a potoroo in the bush because they are becoming rare.

This word comes from the Dharug language of New South Wales.

pouch noun (plural pouches)

1. A pouch is a small bag. Yumiko decided to keep her new bracelet in a little cotton pouch.
2. A pouch is a pocket of skin that some animals have on their bodies. Female kangaroos and other marsupials have a pouch to carry their babies. The joey was getting too big for its mother's pouch.

poultry /say pohl-tree/ noun

Poultry is birds that are kept for their eggs or meat, such as chickens.

Spelling Tip: Remember the ou spelling for the 'oh' sound.

pounce noun

If you pounce on someone or something, you jump on them suddenly.

pound noun

1. A pound is a measurement of weight used in some countries such as America. It is equal to just under half a kilogram. Mum was following an old recipe that was written in pounds so she had to keep translating into kilograms.
2. A pound is the money used in Britain and some other countries. My uncle bought an old car in England for about three thousand pounds so he could travel around the country.

♣ For definition 1, you can also write the sign lb after a number (3lbs of rice).

♣ For definition 2, you can also write the sign £ before a number (£1 000).

pour verb

1. If you pour a liquid, you make it flow out of its container into something else. We poured orange juice into the glasses for everybody at the party.
2. If a liquid pours, a lot of it flows from somewhere. She laughed and laughed and tears poured from her eyes.
3. If it is pouring, it is raining very hard. Salim had to cancel the hockey because it was pouring.

powder noun

Powder is a substance made up of very small loose bits of something dry.

power noun

1. If someone has power to do something, they are able to do it because of the special position and special rights that they have. The government has the power to change some laws.
2. Your powers are the things your body can do, such as see, hear and speak. She was so surprised that she lost her power of speech for a while.
3. Power is strength or force. The car hit the pole with such power that it broke in two.

powerful adjective

If someone or something is powerful, they are strong. They have a lot of power. Salim's family has a new car with a powerful motor. | You can tell from the size of the man that he would be very powerful.

practical adjective

1. If something is practical, it has to do with actually doing things, rather than with ideas. You need practical skills like typing to do this job.
2. If someone is practical, they are good at doing useful work and thinking of sensible answers to problems. She is a good person to have around when things go wrong because she is so practical.

practice /say prak-tuhs/ noun

1. Practice is actual action, rather than ideas. His idea seemed good but it didn't work in practice.
2. Practice is an action or performance that you do many times so that you get better at doing it. Beth does her piano practice every morning.

Spelling Tip: Also look up practise and remember that the noun practice (the 'thing' word) ends with ice while the verb practise (the 'doing' word) ends with ise. This is the pattern with other pairs of words with these endings, for example advice (noun) and advise (verb). Try thinking that ice is a noun as a way