Food for Thought

Food for Thought Today's students are referred to as 'digital natives', being born into a generation of digital technology. It is interesting to consider communication before we had devices such as computers and smart phones. The Bayeaux Tapestry is a fine example of early mass media and an important source of 11th century history. This tapestry was displayed to the mostly illiterate public like a comic strip, so everyone could be informed of current affairs. Its story of survival to this day is amazing.
