The Little Red Hen

This book was written by Paul Galdone. He also drew the pictures.

It tells the story about a little hen that is very hard-working. She shares a house with a dog, a cat and a mouse that are very lazy.

One day the Little Red Hen finds some grains of wheat. The other animals will not help the hen grow the wheat or turn the wheat into flour. The hen must do all the work by herself.

At the end of the story she makes a cake. The animals still will not help her so the Little Red Hen eats the cake by herself.

I like this story because at the end the lazy animals don't get any cake. I think the pictures are good, too.
